

Memories of Changsha:

This dialogue reminds us of our brief vacation in Changsha several years ago, when a few of us shared a bus with every single other inhabitant in the city. We're not sure what the occasion was, but the conductor pretty much gave up on collecting fares, while the rest of us gave up on our hope of ever getting off the bus. The incident ended when the vehicle broke down in a traffic jam, giving us a much greater appreciation for the Beijing metro.
